Target User Persona

Name: Arjun Sharma

Role: Undergraduate Engineering Student (2nd Year)

Context: Studying Data Structures late at night, preparing for an exam tomorrow

Empathy Map

SAYS

- > "I've been staring at this recursion problem for 2 hours and I still don't get it."
- > "I feel so stupid compared to my classmates."
- > "I keep starting over but I can't make progress."
- > "I just want someone to explain this differently."
- > "Maybe engineering isn't for me."

THINKS

- "Everyone else probably understands this easily."
- "I'm running out of time and I'm panicking."
- "Will I fail tomorrow's exam?"
- "Am I studying wrong? Is my approach broken?"
- "I wish I had a tutor right now."

FEELS

Emotion	Trigger
Frustrated	Hours of effort with no visible progress

Emotion	Trigger
Confused	Contradictory explanations from different resources
Anxious	Upcoming deadline and fear of failure
Isolated	No one available to help at midnight
Demotivated	Comparison with peers

DOES

- Switches between YouTube videos, textbooks, and StackOverflow
- Types increasingly desperate queries into search engines
- Closes laptop and tries to sleep, then reopens it
- Texts friends but nobody responds
- Rereads the same paragraph multiple times hoping it clicks

How Our Solution Helps

Pain Point	Solution Feature
Frustration undetected	BiLSTM + BERT + Gemini classifies emotion from his text
Generic responses	Gemini generates emotion-specific, personalized guidance
No 24/7 support	Streamlit app is always available online
Wrong approach	Guidance includes study strategy recommendations
Isolation	App responds empathetically, addressing the emotional context
